

NEWARK BOTTLE COMPANY HEADED BY EDW. H. EVERETT

Incorporated at Columbus With $4,000,000 Capital

It May Mean a Big Extension of the Local Glass Plant.

Company Paid a $4,000 Fee for Incorporation— Owing to Absence of Mr. Everett in New York No Authoritative Statement Can Be Made Today.

Columbus, O., Aug. 4.—One of the largest incorporations ever filed in the office of the Secretary of State, was filed today when the Ohio Bottle company of Newark, was incorporated with a capital stock of $4,000,000. The fee for filing the certificate was $4,000. The stock of the company is divided into 40,000 shares of $100 each, of which 25,000 shares having the agree-gate par value of $2,500,000 shall be common stock, and 15,000 shares of the par value of $1,500,000 shall be preferred stock. The incorporators are Edward H. Everett of Newark, Ohio, Lorenz S. Stoeck, a prominent capitalist of Newark, N. J., David Reed, James F. Pocock and Jacob C. Harrington. The corporation will manufacture and deal in bottles, glass and glassware, and will operate factories, furnaces, depots, warehouses and stores. The holders of the preferred stock will receive cumulative dividends of 7 per cent.

The foregoing special telegram to the Advocate was carried to the office of the Edward H. Everett company, but owing to the absence of Mr. Everett from the city, little could be learned.

It is but reasonable to suppose that the incorporation of a company with the capitalization of $4,000,000 in which such a well known manufacturer as Edward H. Everett of this city is interested, means much to the city of Newark, whose interests Mr. Everett has always had at heart. He is at present in New York and will not return until Saturday morning. No one was found who could speak authoritatively for him, but Mr. Frank E. Fitzgibbon, who is connected with the company's offices, said that it meant a possible increase in the local plant, which will soon start up with 1,400 men. The E. H. Everett Bottle Works has for years been one of the leading industries of the city and a considerable addition to its facilities would mean a great deal to every citizen of Newark. It is probable also that the new Ohio Bottle company will take in other glass concerns of the state, but no authoritative statement can be made until Mr. Everett returns to Newark on Saturday.

COL. HILL

Offers a Few Interesting Bets on the Coming Election.

Washington, Aug. 4.—Colonel "Ike" Hill, the Newark, Ohio, Democratic war horse, is out looking for election bets. These are the wagers he offers:

Even money up to $1,000 that West Virginia goes Democratic, and $1,000 that New York goes Democratic, the two bets to be taken together. Separately $1,000 that a Democratic President is elected.

The Colonel invites the boys to walk up and place their money and says the "long green" will be promptly forthcoming. Later in the day it was said that several "sports" were looking for him to bet on the general result, but nobody had copped his West Virginia-New York proposition. The Colonel confidentially admitted the money he had belonged to a man richer than himself, but it was open to all takers just he same.

The Jordan's course in a straight line is only 60 miles. Along its stream it measures no fewer than 213 miles.

TRAINS

Came Together on L. & N., Thirty People Be- ing Injured.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 4.—One trainman fatally injured, 29 passengers hurt, two engines, their tenders and mail and baggage cars demolished is the result of a head-on collision last night one mile south of Horse Cave, between two Louisville and Nashville through passenger trains.

Joseph Rehm of Louisville, engineer of train No. 1, southbound, is unconscious and probably fatally hurt. The wreck was due to misapprehension on the part of the engineer of the southbound train who mistook the headlight of a freight engine on the siding at Horse Cave for No. 2 passenger train, which he had been ordered to meet at that place. A short distance beyond the switch he beheld the headlight of No. 2, and realizing the mistake he reversed his engine. Fortunately No. 2 was moving rather slowly and this fact is believed to have prevented a terrible loss of life.

TAGGART

Names Those Who are to Aid Him in the Campaign.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 4.—Thomas Taggart, chairman of the Democratic National committee has announced the following following officers of the Democratic committee and the following members of the National executive committee:

National committee—Deancey Nicoll, vice chairman, New York; George Foster Peabody, treasurer, New York; Executive committee—W. F. Sheehan, chairman, New York; August Belmont, New York; John R. McLean, Ohio; United States Senator Thomas S. Martin, Virginia; J. M. Guffey, Pennsylvania; former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., New Jersey; Timothy E. Ryan, Wisconsin.

Chairman Taggart, also made the following statement: "The campaign executive committee will have the advice of Senator Gorman's judgment and experience in the campaign, he agreeing to keep in touch with the management at all times.

The executive committee will meet at the Hoffman House, New York City, Monday morning, August 8 at 11:30 o'clock. The committee will discuss matters relating to the campaign and will also consider the location in New York City of the eastern headquarters and the location of the western headquarters and any other headquarters that may be decided upon."

KERN

Ferris and Dale Nominat- ed for Governors of Three States.

Indianapolis, Aug. 4.—Hon. J. W. Kern of Indianapolis was nominated for Governor by the Democrats, E. J. Fogarty who withdrew, being named for Secretary of State. All factional lines were buried at the big meeting and the leaders are going in to win this fall.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 4.—Prof. W. N. Ferris of Big Rapids, defeated J. S. Stearns for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Topeka, Kas., Aug. 4.—Early this morning Judge D. M. Dale of Wichita, was nominated for Governor by the Democrats. The Populists will accept this nomination and name the candidate for lieutenant governor.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Aug. 4.—Everything points to the nomination of W. R. Thompson for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

MR. BRYAN WILL WORK HARD FOR JUDGE PARKER

Nebraskan Assures Him of Support

Declaring the Party Fealty is Above Everything—Mr. Wall Visits Judge Parker.

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Edward C. Wall of Wisconsin, and Mrs. Wall were the guests of Judge Parker yesterday. Mr. Wall brought a cordial message direct from William J. Bryan, assuring Judge Parker that he is heartily with the ticket and will place himself, at the disposal of the Democratic National committee to do everything in his power to insure party success and Judge Parker's election this fall.

Mr. Bryan breakfasted with Mr. Wall at the latter's home in Milwaukee July 23, and they spent several hours together. They have been warm personal friends for eight years and Mr. Wall supported the Democratic ticket as earnestly during the two silver campaign as he will now support Judge Parker. Mr. Wall has never agreed with Mr. Bryan on the money question, but that made no difference in his attitude toward the Democratic ticket.

Mr. Wall said that Mr. Bryan had been misunderstood in the East and that the feeling toward him is unfortunate. Continuing, he said: "Mr. Bryan is a Democrat and never will be anything else. While differing on some questions from delegates to the St. Louis convention, he realizes that these questions were ruled upon and has accepted the decision. He is satisfied with the platform adopted and thinks, all circumstances considered, the platform is for the best interests of the party at large.

"I will not attempt to say that he has abandoned any of the principles he advocated in his campaign, but he thinks that if he was right he will eventually be vindicated. That, however, will not turn him from what he believes to be the duty of every Democrat to support loyally the platform and the ticket of the party.

"The admiration that Mr. Bryan has for Judge Parker is not half-hearted. He said to me that Judge Parker's telegram to the convention showed courage, and that a man who could so bravely confess his convictions is a suitable standard bearer for the party and one that every Democrat can endorse and support with credit to himself."

RUSSEL SAGE 88

New York, Aug. 4.—Russell Sage celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday anniversary today by coming to his office and doing his usual day's work. He is enjoying vigorous health for a man of his years.

Pope's Anniversary.

Rome, Aug. 4.—The first anniversary of the election of Pope Pius X to the chair of St. Peter was observed at the Vatican today. At 5:30 o'clock this morning his holiness celebrated high mass. He declared himself to be tired, almost sick of the political wrangling with which he has had to contend since his election to the head of the Roman Catholic church.

MISSION

Of Sec'y Wilson is to Ob- tain Information for President.

New York, Aug. 4.—The New York News bureau of a Wall street agency, sent out the following Washington dispatch on its telegraph this afternoon: "The Secretary of Agriculture has hurriedly left the city on a western trip the object of which is to investigate personally on behalf of the President the effect of the beef trust on the producers of cattle. Utilization of a member of the cabinet upon such work is rather unusual and it is quite likely that Secretary Wilson will deny the real object of his trip, but it is positively known that such is the mission."

Chicago, Aug. 4.—President Donnelly returning from a tour of the western packing centers is reported to have advised that another proposition be made to the packers which involves satisfaction to employers and at the same time will not kill the organization the strikers have built up. In another direction the advisability of reopening negotiations with the packers is being discussed among the officials of the Chicago Federation of Labor, who believe the packers will not refuse to meet with representatives of the union men.

PENSION

Granted Five Year Old Boy at Marys- ville—Lad to Receive $10 a Month.

Marysville O., Aug. 4.—Master Addison J. McCullough the five-year-old son of Mrs. Phoebe McCullough, has been granted a pension of $10 per month dating from December 5, 1903. The government will continue paying this allowance until the young man is 16 years of age. Mrs. McCullough and her late husband, John F. McCullough, who was a member of the 36th U. S. V. I., were not married until after 1890 which fact under the law if the pension department, barred her from getting a widow's pension. Addison, however, was born the next day after his father's death is permitted to share in the awards.

LADS

Arrested After Struggle Are Suspected of Re- cent Holdups.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Three youths were arrested after a desperate struggle in which several shots were exchanged before daylight today by the flying squadron of the west Chicago aviator station.

The prisoners gave their names as John Mick, Mike Droessler and Joe Furzynski. They said they were also known by alias of "Ice", "Stubby" and "Joe Susie." Mick is 19 years old and the other two are each 18 years old. Revolvers were found on them and in Droessler's pocket was a book with pictures cut from the cover of dime novels and pasted between the leaves. There were also two large pictures, one of the Chicago city railway car-larn robbers and one of the recent train robbery on the Illinois Central. The police suspect their connection with the recent hold-up.

FARMER

In Delaware County Cut to Ribbons by a Mowing Machine—Horses Ran Away.

Delaware, O., Aug. 4.—Bert Reed, an Oxford township farmer, was horribly injured yesterday by falling under the binder while he was engaged in harvesting oats. The horses, rendered restless by the flies, ran away, and Reed in trying to catch them, was pitched in front of a cutter bar. One blade penetrated his lungs, his face was literally sliced to pieces and three ribs were broken as the machine passed over him. He will die.

LAWYERS

Wallowed Around in the Mud and Soiled Their Polished Shoes in Coshocton County.

Coshocton, O., Aug. 4.—Judge T. C. Roche and Attorney John C. Adams, two dignified members of the Coshocton bar had a harrowing experience this week as cowboys. In the intricacies of a law suit in Monroe township, they got hold of five head of cattle for a client which they essayed to drive. The kine wandered into a swamp and for two hours the lawyers slushed about in their patent leathers until they got the herd on terra firma. They drove them a point where a sale was announced, and as there were no bidders, and to get even they, themselves bought the cattle.

DECISIVE Battle of Eastern War Now At Hand.

Such is General Belief in London Diplomatic Quarters.

New Chwang and Hai Cheng Occupied by Japs— Russian General is Known to be in a Tight Place—Official Message Comes From Tokio.

Washington, Aug. 4.—The Japanese legation today received the following official telegram from the foreign office at Tokio:

"General Oku reports that the enemy has been retreating continuously northward since Aug. 2. On Aug. 3 our army occupied Hai Cheng and New Chwang."

London, Aug. 4.—That the decisive battle of the Russo-Japanese war is at hand, if not already in progress, is the general belief today in diplomatic and military quarters. The Russian positions which, when spread out, formed a sort of wedge, have been forced to the Japanese, and the Russians have, as a result contracted into a more solid mass. This concentrated force is retreating, but cannot go far without engaging in battle. The fight is expected at Ans Chan Chan, to the south of Liao Yang. General Kuroki, with a force estimated at 100,000 men is now in front of the retreating Russians; General Oku, with 50,000 men is behind them, while General Nodzu with a like number is on the left flank of Kuropatkin's army. In addition, a force of Japanese recently landed at Yin Kow and advanced to New Chwang and is in a position to hurl itself on western force of Russians, thus completing the enveloping screen.

Dispatches from St. Petersburg to day state that great uneasiness is felt there regarding the outcome of the fight. Kuropatkin is known to be in a tight place.

A dispatch from New Chwang states that the Japanese there have already discussed what the effect of Kuropatkin's defeat would have. It is generally believed that he would have but two alternatives. Either he must surrender or retreat to the westward, thus leaving the railway in the hands of the Japanese.

This it is believed would be avoiding the inevitable for but a short time, for with the railway in their hands, the Japanese could readily cut off all communication between Kuropatkin and the north and his surrender must come in the not distant future. The Japanese feel confident that this martial game of chess has reached the point where but a few more moves are necessary before the Russian commander will be checkmated.

New Chwang, now in the hands of the Japanese has information that the Russians are driven back to their line of defense at Port Arthur and that the Japanese have in all 350 guns trained on these defenses. Nothing official regarding the situation at the port has been received at Tokio or St. Petersburg.

JAPS DROVE THEM BACK
Tokio, Aug. 4.—Advices received here today state that twelve Russian destroyers, four torpedo boats and a number of gun boats emerged from Port Arthur Monday night but were driven back by the Japanese.

REGULARS

Will Participate With the O. N. G. in the August Maneuvers.

Columbus, Aug. 4.—Two regular army battalions of infantry, two troops of cavalry and two batteries of artillery have been ordered by the War department to participate in the maneuvers of the Ohio National Guard in Athens county, August 16 to 23. Including regulars and militiamen, about 7,000 men will participate in the maneuvers during which at least three and possibly four sham battles will be fought for points and over 300,000 rounds of blank ammunition used.

PEOPLE

Fleeing to American Lega- tion for Safety Were Stoned.

Port au Prince, Hayti, Aug. 4.—A general melee between soldiers and foreigners, the majority of the latter Syrians, occurred here today. The police seemed powerless to suppress the disorder. The carriages of several Americans who were driving to the legation for protection were stoned. Vigorous demonstrations against the disorders have been made by the diplomatic corps.

Medical examiners for life insurance societies have added the term, "coffee heart" to their regular classification of the functional derangements of that organ. Its effect is in shortening the long beat of the heart.

FORTUNE AWAITS HIM

Harry P. Radcliff Former Newark Boy Leaves Columbus to Claim the Estate of a Relative in Kansas City, Mo.

Harry P. Radcliff, formerly of Newark, but now one of the stockholders in the Empire Theater company of Columbus, left Wednesday for Kansas City to claim an estate of $5,000 left by an uncle, Mr. A. H. Greeson.

Greeson was a half brother of Mrs. Radcliff's mother, who died recently. The deceased was a wealthy bachelor, having made his fortune in the oil business in Texas. He owned a great deal of property in the vicinity of Kansas City and it is believed that Mr. Radcliff will come in possession of 150 acres of land in Missouri. Mr. Greeson died leaving no will and it is the belief of Mr. Radcliff and Mr. E. O. Ricketts the Columbus attorney who represents him that the sole heir living in Columbus, will be given the fortune and the property by the court.

LOVE EVERLASTING

By Francis Livingston

Copyright, 1902, by Francis Livingston

THE summer had gone. It was in the early days of autumn, and already the tenderer leaves, touched by the first frost, were beginning to fall softly upon the grass.

Within a cemetery, beside a freshly green grave, sat a woman dressed in black. She was young and fair. Up on the grave lay a little bunch of fresh flowers. Every day for two months past she had brought flowers to the grave and had sat for an hour on the bench underneath the willow tree which shaded it.

As she sat thus, absorbed in her tender memories, she never consciously raised her eyes to note who passed by. But one day she saw, quite as it were, by accident, a young man standing a little distance from her, gazing at a grave she did not remember to have noticed before. He also was dressed in mourning, and his face was pale and sad. Her heart was suddenly very tender toward him, for she knew him for a brother.

After this the young man came every day at about the same hour as the young woman. Sometimes they would meet at the gate, or he would pass her on the gravelled walk which led to the two graves, and in time it

He advanced and spoke to her. came that on these occasions he would salute her respectfully. She would bow to him timidly.

One day, in place of the few flowers and green things he, like her, always brought to the cemetery, he came with a great armful of splendid roses—white, yellow and pink ones. After he had bestowed these upon the grave he visited so regularly it was quite covered with them. The young woman eyed them hungrily, but when he looked toward her her head was turned away. He advanced and spoke to her, somewhat hesitatingly. She turned and was surprised to see his hands filled with roses, which he held out toward her.

"It is my Adelaide's birthday," he said gently. "She was so good, so generous, when on earth that she would be pleased to have me give you some of these for your dear one."

She could not speak at first for her tears. Just as he was moving away, embarrassed, she said brokenly: "You are very good. I thank you in my Arthur's name."

After this, although he always saluted her kindly, he did not address her again for perhaps a fortnight. Then one afternoon she looked up and was surprised to find him standing beside her. He began to speak to her quite naturally and without apology.

"The strangest thing to me is that the world goes on just as before. It seemed to me that everything must stop when Adelaide died. Often I can hardly endure the noise and hurry of the world outside. Indeed, my world is here."

"It is so with me," she said simply. "I really live only for this hour that I spend beside him."

"My friends—my friends, too—seek to distract me. They tell me I dwell too much upon her memory and that it is my duty to forget my sorrow."

"They only can understand who have known such a loss themselves," she said.

"That is why I can speak to you of her," he replied, "because you know."

He told her much about his Adelaide. They had been married two years only when she died. She had taken a chill through being out in a rain storm one day when she was visiting a poor family. She was all goodness and charity, and had at the last given her life for others.

She in turn talked to him of her Arthur, who had been her husband for a brief six months. He was never robust and had succumbed to a fever which attacked him in the summer. He was so gentle and noble. Every one who knew him loved him.

Thus a companionship was established between them. There were days when they sat near each other without speaking. Sometimes they would exchange a few words, but each felt the nearness and sympathy of the other.

The days were growing shorter rapidly, and it soon became too cold to sit long out of doors. Then came a sudden storm, and for days the two graves were white with snow.

When they met again it was as two friends who had been long separated. Each had much to say to the other, much of the old story—almost as old as love—of grief and of longing for the blessed dead.

When at Christmas time he came she was not there, but a beautiful wreath of holly lay on Adelaide's grave, marked "For Arthur." His eyes filled with tears, and of the flowers he had brought he laid the half on the other grave in Adelaide's name.

In January there were some mild days, almost springlike, when they met and talked again. Now she told him something of herself. She lived with her husband's parents. They were old people and sometimes were very sad. She felt it her duty to be as cheerful as she could for their sakes.

He made his home with his sister and her husband. They were very kind to him, but their house was often full of life and gaiety, and he longed for the old home he had known with Adelaide, to live there alone with his memories.

Again the snows came, and again there were often days when they did not meet, but when they did it was always to both a source of tender joy tinged with delicious melancholy.

With March came a season of mild and lovely days. There was as yet no hint of green among the branches of the trees, but one felt that the new shoots were swelling, and the scent of the young, swift advancing spring preceded her.

The two friends sat together underneath the willow, which was now veiled with feathered life. His color was deeper and his bearing more spirited than in the autumn. The sadness of her youthful face was softened by a smile.

They had talked of Adelaide and Arthur at first, and afterward of each other. Then they sat side by side in silence, as only those can remain between whom there exists the understanding born of long and sympathetic association.

The warmth of the sun was very pleasant. The breeze swayed the branches of the willow gently. Beneath their feet the ground was stirring with the premonition of the coming change, the recurring phenomenon of the new life. With the unconscious movement of the sleeper the earth was slowly turning her great brown cheek from the relaxed embrace of winter to meet the vivifying kisses of the sun. Far away a turtle dove was calling to her mate. From the willow branches two little birds, quarrelling noisily, fell to the grass at their feet, then flew away to a neighboring tree to kiss and make up again. The young woman on the bench raised her eyes to the eyes of the young man beside her. With a vague consciousness of alarm she moved away a little, and a slight shiver passed over her.

"You are cold," he said to her gently. "We have sat too long beneath the shade of the willow. Come; let us walk a little in the sunshine." And he laid his hand on hers.

But she drew away her hand, her eyes lowered, her cheek scarlet. "I must go," she said and walked rapidly away.

He followed more slowly, a new light in his eyes as he looked after her.

The path they walked in reflected the warm rays of the sun. The two graves lay in the deepening shadow of the willow.

As the Briton Told the Joke.

This is a true story of how an Englishman reported an American joke. Brown told the story at a eucbre party. He said:

"My wife's name is Ruth. The other morning I woke up in a happy frame of mind and just to jolly her said, 'Hello, Norah.' My wife retorted, 'I'm not Norah,' and I replied, 'Nor am I.'"

Every one laughed at Brown's joke, and the Englishman seemed to enjoy it as heartily as any one else. A few nights later he repeated it at another party. This is how he told it:

"I say, don't you know, that fellow Brown made a remarkably good joke the other day. It seems Brown woke up, and he said to Mrs. Brown, 'Good morning, Norah.' Mrs. Brown replied, 'I say, you know, my name is not Norah.' And Brown said, 'Neither is mine.'"

The laugh not arriving on time, the Englishman added, "Bah, Jove, I forgot to mention the fact that Mrs. Brown's name isn't Norah, don't you know."

The Korean.

The Korean is omnivorous. Birds of the air, beasts of the field and fish from the sea—nothing comes amiss to his palate. Dog meat is in great request at certain seasons, pork and beef with the blood undrained from the carcass, fowls and game, birds cooked with the lights, giblets, head and claws intact, fish sun dried and highly malodorous—all are acceptable to him.

Myrrh.

When the myrrh first exudes from the tree it is of a yellowish, whitish, buttery consistency that gradually hardens and assumes a reddish, semi-transparent color. It is used principally as one of the components of incense, and the best quality of it comes from the Somali country and lower Abyssinia, near Harar.

Patience.

Patience is the most important factor in making a success of life. No great work was ever accomplished without a wholesome amount of this attribute practiced by the achiever.

Here is something you never see mentioned by the writers on etiquette: Every person's social obligation begins at home.—Acheson Globe.

After Graduation

[Original.]

When I first saw Marshall Kingman, I had just been graduated from the seminary, he from college. He had led his class from start to finish, and his family was very proud of him. I remember the old fashioned watch key he wore, the badge of an "honor" society, and it was more to me than the decoration of the Legion of Honor to a French girl or the Victoria cross to an English girl. But what was my delight during those long evenings late in June or early in July when he singled me out from among the other girls for walks after tea and seldom would dance with any one else during our gatherings after nightfall. He seemed inclined to talk with me as to his choice of a vocation; but, I confess, none of the professions seemed to me to be exalted enough for him unless he was to become a bishop, and this was not in his line. He was rather calculating, I thought, to invent a new system of philosophy, as Herbert Spencer had done.

That same spring John Sisson came home from a small institute where they taught engineering or mechanical drawing or something like that. It was understood that he had barely scraped through, and the institution not being known to us girls, taking the two together, we did not place a very high estimate on John or his education. The truth is that we were at an age when education is everything, and people were at that time education mad. The point seemed to be to educate and let the boy use his education as best he could when he got it. John and I had been brought up together, and now that we were grown he seemed inclined to be very attentive. But why should I accept the attentions of one who had been graduated low on the scale in an unknown institution when I could have those of one who had been graduated first in the oldest university in the land?

Five years passed. Marshall Kingman had received the appointment of assistant professor in his alma mater, but, whether it was because he had not the faculty of imparting his knowledge, or did not think he was getting on fast enough, he soon resigned it to embrace a good opportunity to go into business. John Sisson had managed to pick up some knowledge of civil engineering, though it was said he had failed to take his diploma. The truth is John, from the time he was in school, was infatuated with an outdoor life and was better satisfied with building a culvert or a henhouse on his father's place than in study. He was always called crack brains from certain impossible suggestions he would make with reference to ways of doing things. He went to the far west, and the next we heard of him he was back with a view to securing capital to invest in a wild scheme for draining a lake or a marsh or something of the sort. Of course no one would listen to him, and he went west again. Two or three years after this he was back again, but this time as quite an important personage, for he had done his draining, securing the funds by an issue of stocks or bonds, or something on paper, and the property had become very valuable. I ought not to say what he came for, but my story compels me to admit that he came for me.

Had he come a year or two earlier I doubt if I should have listened to him. I am a practical woman and admit that in the choice of a husband I would always recommend a girl to consider intrinsic worth. I am not romantic and see no sense in a girl choosing a man who gives no promise. I had long looked up to Marshall Kingman and the wonders he would do. He made a mistake by going into business. Those who took him in, expecting he would fill a certain department to their profit, found to their cost that he had no head for an administrative position.

The friend who had given him the opportunity told him one day that what he was trying to do was beneath his acquirements and recommended him to leave business and find something nearer the lines on which he had been educated. When Marshall came to me and told me this, thinking, as he did, that the man had paid him a compliment, the poor fellow's deficiencies came out plainly to me. He had shown in his tutelage that he had not the faculty for imparting knowledge to others. Now it was evident that he had not the faculty for using it in a practical field. I could not advise him; I could only sympathize with him. He wrote several books after this, but they were not on practical subjects and were not largely read. He is now doing hack work for a publishing house.

Being a practical woman, I could not but listen to John Sisson, who pleaded his cause very deferentially and modestly. He said that what he was about was not a high grade of work and that I deserved a more intellectual man, but he hoped I would take pity on him, and he would return it with a life of devotion. I considered the matter for several days and then became his affianced wife.

Fifteen years have passed and have brought a great change in my estimate of people's attainments. My husband astonishes me every day by the number of seemingly impossible things he can do and the unusual methods by which he does them. He is the most prominent man in his state, and no project of moment is undertaken without his having first been consulted. The difference between him and Marshall Kingman was that Marshall had great ability to absorb knowledge and none to apply it, while John could take a little knowledge and make it go a great way.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Powerful in Politics.

George B. Cortelyou, chairman of the Republican national committee, who left a place in the cabinet to direct the presidential campaign for the Republican party, was practically unknown to the political world a decade ago.

During Mr. Cleveland's second term he appointed Mr. Cortelyou to the post of stenographer on the White House staff. He was continued in office by GEORGE BRUCE CORTELYOU.

President McKinley, who subsequently made him assistant private secretary and in 1900 advanced him to private secretary. On the death of Mr. McKinley he became private secretary to President Roosevelt, continuing in that position until appointed secretary of the new department of commerce and labor, which he organized. Mr. Cortelyou, who has just passed his forty-second birthday, is a native of New York and studied law before entering the public service.

Literal Meaning.

Judge Stanchfield of Elmira, N. Y., speaking of literal men, tells a story of a shock he had in a case in which he was recently associated. Several witnesses had sworn there was a hole in a certain road. Then, to the surprise of counsel, the principal witness, a farmer, on whom they mainly depended to establish their case, swore there was no hole in the road. After Mr. Stanchfield and his associates had recovered from their astonishment they sought to draw the witness into some explanation of the remarkable testimony. What they eventually got was this:

"There wasn't any hole in the road. Here's my bat. If I jam my hand into the top of it without pushing it through it does not make a hole. It makes a dent. That's what was in that road—just a dent."—New York Times.

His Taste Was Going.

Archbishop Farley of New York, who has recently been visiting the Vatican, finds that Pope Pius has a keen sense of humor and reports that he enjoyed the following story: Con Crehan's father, being sick, was making his will, and in order that he might have strength to do so, was given a drink of liquor by Con and a group of neighbors. Toward the close the dying man said to his son: "Ah, Con, Con! Just touch my lips once more with the jug. Wish, my son, you watered the drink." "No, indeed, father, dear," while a low murmur chorused through the cabin, "but it's the taste that's lavin' ye."—New York Times.

Enemy of Political Corruption.

Joseph W. Folk, who has just been nominated for governor of Missouri by the Democrats, came into prominence through the work performed by him as circuit attorney of St. Louis. Although one of the most prominent figures in Missouri, Mr. Folk is barely thirty-five. He is a native of Tennessee, studied law at Nashville, and in 1891 began the practice of his profession at St. Louis.

He soon became a leader of the young Democracy and in 1900 was chosen circuit attorney of the city. From the very first Mr. Folk began to probe into municipal corruption and in his investigations knew no politics. His aim has been to punish rascals, no matter to which party they belonged.

What a Bonanza Is.

Norman E. Mack of Buffalo, a national committeeman, was asked the other day to define the word bonanza. Mr. Mack has had some experience in mining propositions and replied:

"A bonanza is a hole in the ground owned by a confounded liar."

Clever Detective Work.

A distinguished surgeon, who was also a detective in embryo, was called to perform an operation upon a man who had been shot by an unknown assassin. The position of the man and the mystery of the shooting rendered the case notorious. The man was unconscious at the time of the operation, and nothing could be obtained from him. When the doctor examined the wound, he said to his assistant:

"A pistol has been fired at him by a person who is left handed."

While he was explaining the reasons for his conclusion Mr. —'s partner, a Mr. X., entered the room. Something about his manner attracted the attention of the eminent surgeon, and he whispered to his colleague:

"If that man were left handed, I should at once suspect him of the crime."

The next instant he turned to X. and said:

"Will you kindly hand me that lint?" X. did so, using his left hand. The man died. X. was accused of the murder and upon being tried and condemned confessed his guilt.

Enforced Church Attendance.

In the reign of Edward VI. an act was passed which provided that every one "shall diligently and faithfully, having no lawful or reasonable excuse to be absent, endeavor themselves to their parish church or chapel accustomed, or, upon reasonable let, to some usual place where common prayer shall be used—on Sundays and holidays—upon penalty of forfeiting for every nonattendance 12 pence, to be levied by the church wardens to the use of the poor." As the years rolled on, however, the penalties for nonattendance became more and more severe, until in Elizabeth's reign such harsh legislation as the following was passed: "All persons who do not go to church or chapel or other places where common prayer is said according to the act of uniformity shall forfeit £20 per month to the queen, being thereof lawfully convicted, and suffer imprisonment until paid."

An Eastern Tale.

"In many cases," says Sir John Lubbock, "religious differences are mainly verbal. There is an eastern tale of four men—an Arab, a Persian, a Turk and a Greek—who agreed to club together for an evening meal, but when they had done so they quarreled as to what it should be. The Turk proposed azum, the Arab aneb, the Persian aneb, while the Greek insisted on staphylon. While they were disputing—

"Before their eyes did pass, Laden with grapes, a gardener's ass, Sprang to his feet each man and showed, With eager hand, that purple load. 'See azum,' said that Turk. 'And see Angur,' the Persian. 'What should be Better?' 'Nay, aneb, aneb 'tis,' The Arab cried. The Greek said, 'This is my staphylon.' Then they bought Their grapes in peace. Hence, be ye taught."

The Tibetan Bible.

The Kangyur, or Tibetan bible, consists of 108 volumes of 1,000 pages each, containing 1,083 separate books. Each of the volumes weighs ten pounds and forms a package twenty-six inches long, eight inches broad and eight inches deep. This bible requires a dozen yaks for its transport, and the carved wooden blocks from which it is printed need rows of houses, like a city, for their storage. A tribe of Mongols paid 7,000 oxen for a copy of this bible. In addition to the bible there are 225 volumes of commentaries, which are necessary for its understanding. There is also a large collection of revelations which supplement the bible.

To Preserve Cut Carnations.

To prevent that premature bursting of the calyx which so often injures the appearance of several varieties of carnations, especially the cut blooms, turn down the calyx of each blossom and slip beneath it close to the base of the sepals and quite out of sight a tiny collar of soft silk or cotton thread. Tie and cut off the ends of the thread, then turn the calyx back to its natural position, smoothing it carefully over the thread collar, and the flower will retain its perfect shape until it fades and dies.—Ladies' Home Journal.

When Honeymoons End.

The late Mrs. John Ridgway of Paris was noted for her ready wit. At one of her receptions apropos of marriage Guy de Maupassant said:

"The honeymoon ends when the wife first asks the husband for money."

"No," Mrs. Ridgway retorted. "It ends when the husband ceases to ask the wife how much he can have the pleasure of giving her."

Strengthened His Suspicion.

Hugh Miller in "My Schools and Schoolmasters" tells us that while he was making his first after dinner speech he began to suspect that he was making a failure of it. This suspicion was strengthened when he took his seat, for the band at once began to play "A Man's a Man for A' That."

Attractive.

"Yes, his painting attracts a great many people."

"Great artist, eh?"

"No; just a house painter. He puts out a sign, 'Fresh Paint,' and every one touches it to see if it's dry."

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Orange Peel Preserves.

Preserved orange peel is good to eat. First cleanse thoroughly with warm water and a brush the outside of the peel. Scrape from peel the inner white. Place in kettle the yellow peel, and with it place one tablespoon salt and enough water to cover. Boil ten minutes and pour off; put over fresh water, boil up and turn off again. Continue changing the water until the peel has boiled tender. To drain off and put over fresh water three or four times is usually sufficient. Remove tender peel and chop very fine. With one cup of sugar and one-half cup of water to each cup of orange peel boil the chopped peel, stirring constantly until mixture has boiled nearly dry, then put on plates and set in warming oven to dry out. It need not be perfectly dry when placed in jars. The preserves give a fine flavor to puddings, cakes, cereals and mince meats.

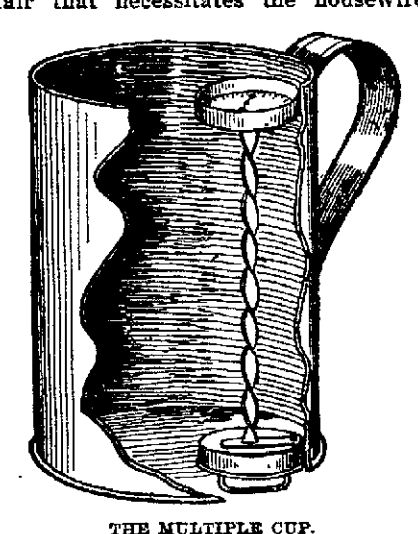

Care of the Feet.

If any one thinks he has "fart foot" or broken arch he can be sure by putting the foot into water, getting the whole bottom wet; then put the foot on the floor while wet and stand up. If the arch is broken the print of the whole foot will be on the floor. If the arch is all right there will be a dry space on the inside of the foot, between the fall of the foot and heel. If the arch is broken, some cases are entirely cured by wearing a thick piece of felt (such as harness makers use in collars, I think) cut to fit in under the arch. It is not as painful as the "arches" sold of steel and is sometimes better. It can be made as thick or thin as needed. For a soft corn between the toes put in a pinch of baking soda and a few drops of vinegar every night till the corn is gone.

A Handy Measure.

The housewife is often annoyed, while engaged in her kitchen work, by discovering that her pint or gill measure is missing or mislaid or that the measuring cups bought from the grocers are not correct.

A young inventor has designed an affair that necessitates the housewife having but one measure, and that so constructed that a glance tells just the amount of liquid it contains.

This multiple cup has within its walls a spiral rod, to the top of which are affixed a disk and a movable hand or indicator. As the liquid rises in the cup a rotary motion is imparted to the rod, and as it revolves the hand indicates on the disk the amount of the contents, just as the hand on a cyclometer indicates the number of yards a bicycle or motor carriage has traveled.

Onions For Diphtheria.

In cases of diphtheria onions in the form of a poultice and a sirup are said to have an almost magical effect. The poultice in this case is made of the raw onion pounded to a pulp and bandaged around the throat well up to the ears, changing as often as the mass becomes dry. A poultice of the same on the sole of each foot reduces the fever. The mucilaginous properties of onion juice make it specially soothing to the inflamed mucous membrane and therefore acceptable in case of whooping cough, croup or diphtheria. An excellent way to make the sirup is to cut the onion into slices, sprinkle plentifully with sugar and press between hot plates and a heavy weight until all the juice is extracted.

Table Decoration.

Much prettier and more sensible than the old fashioned enormous center decoration for the table is the new fashion of placing vases as well as candles at the four corners. The middle of the table is occupied by a low dish of flowers, some of the blossoms being merely laid on the cloth. The corner decorations should not be large enough to be in the way.

Bronzing Liquid.

The article to be bronzed must be well cleaned, then gently warmed and brushed over with the following preparation, using a small quantity at a time: One dram of sal ammoniac, 15 grains of oxalic acid and one pint of vinegar, all well mixed together. Rub dry, then repeat the application till required tint is obtained.

Fried Turnips.

Fried turnips should be boiled until almost soft enough to eat, then sliced and set away to cool. In the meantime an egg or two should be beaten up with sufficient cracker crumbs to form a batter, the turnips to be dipped in this and fried in deep fat in which a few bits of onion have been browned.

Care of Hot Water Cisterns.

Hot water cistns and jugs will last much longer if instead of being hung in the usual way they are turned upside down directly they are emptied. It is the few drops of water in the bottom which cause them to rust into holes.

A Baby's Birth

Is very much like the blossoming of a flower. Its beauty and perfection depends entirely upon the care bestowed upon its parent. Expectant mothers should have the tenderest care. They should be kept healthy and happy. They should eat plenty of good nourishing food and take gentle exercises. This will go a long way toward preserving their health and their beauty as well as that of the little one to come. But to be absolutely sure of a short and painless labor they should use

ORDINANCE NO....

To change the route of the Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark Traction Company, in the City of Newark, Ohio.

Whereas, it is deemed to be for the advantage, convenience and benefit of the public, that a change in the route of the Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark Traction Company in the City of Newark, be made.

Therefore be it ordained by the Council of City of Newark, the State of Ohio:

Section 1. That the Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark Traction Company be and are hereby authorized to change the route of the said company as defined and described in an ordinance of said city passed December 15th, 1899, and supplementary ordinance thereto passed September 10th, 1900, and April 15th, 1901, as follows: Commencing at the south corporation line of the City of Newark where the same intersects Union street, thence north over and along the tracks of said company to Pine street; thence north along and over the tracks of said company on Pine street to West Main street; thence east on West Main street along and over the tracks of the Columbus, Newark and Zanesville Electric Railway company to North Park Place.

Provided further that nothing herein contained shall be construed to authorize the extension of the tracks or route of said Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark Traction Company over those of the Columbus, Newark and Zanesville Electric railway company, otherwise than in the manner provided by law excepting by agreement of both companies.

Sec. 2. In consideration of this grant said Company shall carry any passenger on a ticket from Columbus to Newark or from Newark to Columbus, or mileage on same to any point on said line on East Main street in said city on a continuous trip.

Sec. 3. Said company shall be entitled to charge at the rate of five cents for a single fare and shall sell on its cars six tickets for 25 cents, each good for a single fare within the corporation limits.

Sec. 4. Cars shall be operated over said route at least once an hour between the hours of 6:00 a. m. and 10:00 p. m.

Sec. 5. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and legal publication and the filing with the City Clerk the written acceptance thereof by the Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark Traction Company.

Passed August 1, 1904.

HARRY ROSSEL, Pres.

FRANK T. MAURATH, Clerk.

Approved by Mayor August 3, 1904.

DIAMOND

Lost By Mr. Caro Miller Just as His Act at the Casino Started Wednesday Night.

Mr. Caro Miller head of the Columbians, who are doing a clever turn at the Idlewild casino, lost a very valuable diamond setting in a ring which he was wearing, preparatory to going on for his act. Diligent search failed to locate the gem and Mr. Miller has about given up hope of finding it.

He and his family have been peculiarly unfortunate in the matter of losing jewelry in the last four weeks, in that time having lost and had stolen from them a handsome hand made knife, beautifully inlaid, which Mr. Miller got in Sweden, a diamond setting belonging to Mrs. Miller a present from the Duke of Devonshire, a pair of jeweled cuff buttons, and another diamond belonging to one of the children.

The act which the Miller family presents is the most refined in vaudeville, (call it vodvil, long "o") and it is being appreciated by the park audiences this week.

OUT OF JOINT
Has Become the Republican Slogan,
"Let Well Enough Alone."

The Republican slogan of 1900, "Let well enough alone," is badly out of joint as a campaign war cry now. The business conditions that Roosevelt found when he took office on the death of McKinley, which were then the boast of the Republican party, had but a short duration. Very soon after Mr. Roosevelt assumed his peculiar personal control of affairs business conditions began to change and grow from bad to worse. Values tumbled, serious panics were threatened, labor troubles became a constant menace to enterprise, while doubt, uncertainty and a lack of confidence rapidly became wide spread. Many business enterprises had to be and were abandoned. Railroads had to curtail expenses and cease all great outlays for betterment. For months these serious conditions existed, and only since the nomination of Judge Parker by the Democrats have threatened panics ceased. The effect already speaks for itself. It is plainly perceptible that there is increased business confidence at the great commercial and industrial centers. Of course business conditions need further improvement, but this will be in evidence as the campaign progresses and the election of Judge Parker becomes more and more assured in the public mind. Even leading Republican newspapers have been compelled to admit that the nomination of Judge Parker really restores confidence in business circles and eliminates all the talk we have heard in recent years about Presidential elections being a menace to business. Some of them have said what practically amounts to conceding that Parker possesses a greater share of the confidence of legitimate business interests than Roosevelt does. Hence the slogan of "Let well enough alone" sounds exceedingly ridiculous under Mr. Roosevelt's personal dictatorship administration, and cannot be made an effective war cry by the Republicans in the present campaign.

The great independent newspapers, who are the best representatives of the country's business interests, are already showing that the welfare of these interests will be best promoted by the election of Judge Parker. With one voice they stoutly maintain not only that there will be no panics caused by Judge Parker's election but that the conditions of all legitimate business and enterprise will be improved thereby, for the reason that he is a sounder and safer man than Roosevelt.

Albert B. Boardman, a leading lawyer of New York and a law partner of Senator Platt's son, has declared himself in favor of the election of Judge Parker to the presidency. It has made a stir in political circles. Mr. Boardman is reported to have expressed himself strongly to the effect that no lawyer who holds the constitution in respect and desires to see executive officers keep within the letter of the law could endorse President Roosevelt. On this idea he has expressed a strong preference for Judge Parker as a man trained to the respect and observance of the law. The same stand has been taken by nearly all the eminent lawyers of New York. This is one of the many good reasons why the great independent newspapers of New York are unanimously supporting Judge Parker.

It is certainly pertinent and timely to look into the record of Speaker Cannon to see what has been his position on the silver question. Which the Republicans insist must remain an issue. In 1878 Speaker Cannon voted to override the veto of Mr. Hayes, a President of his own party, of the Bland-Allison silver bill. In 1894 he voted for the Sherman silver purchase law, and in 1892, after it had precipitated a panic, he voted against the repeal of it. In 1895 he voted to reject the proposition to make United States bonds payable in gold. These things are not now in issue, but if the Republicans insist on raising the unquiet ghost of silver, by all means let us have the whole story, especially when it applies so directly and conspicuously to the Republican Speaker of the House.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Prominent in Politics.
Thomas Taggart, who was endorsed for the chairmanship of the Democratic national committee at the meeting of that body in St. Louis, is one of the leading Democrats of Indiana.

THOMAS TAGGART.
Born in Ireland in 1836, Mr. Taggart came to this country in 1861 with his parents, who settled in Xenia, O. In 1877 he went to Indianapolis, where he has since resided. His political career began in 1886, when he was elected auditor of Marion county. Four years later he was re-elected, and in 1892 he became chairman of the Democratic state committee. In the same year he was chosen a member of the national committee. Mr. Taggart was mayor of Indianapolis from 1895 to 1901.

His Reling Passion.
Willett F. Cook, advertising manager of Judge, tells the following story of an incident that happened at Schenectady park recently, says the New York Times. In a spirited baseball game the first baseman was knocked senseless by the swift running of one of the players. For some time it was thought the man was actually dead. Relays of ball players were employed in working the arms of the prostrate man. After considerable time he began to breathe feebly. When consciousness returned he slowly opened his eyes and remarked:
"Has any one got a cigarette?"
"Great Scott!" said one of the bystanders. "He has just come from the jaws of death and now asks for a nail for his coffin."

His Hands Were Crossed.
A short time ago the Rev. Thomas R. Slicer of New York was on what may be termed a parlor car missionary trip. His itinerary included Atlanta, where a large congregation turned out to hear him. He had just finished his sermon, and as the congregation sang the last hymn Mr. Slicer stood in the pulpit with his hands folded on the open Bible.

As the last verse was reached and the New York clergyman was beginning to think of the benediction he glanced at the page of the Bible open before him, and the first line he saw was:
"The fool bath crossed his hands."—New York Times.

Professor Drum of Bucknell university, Lewisburg, Pa., went on a fishing excursion Memorial day. While on his way home he fell in with an affable stranger, who, seeing the professor's fishing tackle, asked him, "What luck?"
The doctor showed his catch, whereupon the stranger remarked:
"Mphm. I'm Fish Warden Burkley. You've been fishing out of season." And the day's outing cost the professor something close to $50.—Omaha Bee.

A Bow of Corn Colored Ribbon

(Original.)

A girl with an umbrella in her hand and a reticule on her arm was vainly endeavoring to tie her shoe on a crowded sidewalk.
"Will you permit me?"

A young man spoke the words in a well modulated voice and with a deferential tone. Then, without waiting for a reply, he dropped on one knee on the sloppy stone, regardless of the mud or the crease in his trousers, and endeavored to tie the shoe-string. Alas, it was broken in the middle!
If an untied shoestring in the street is a misfortune, a broken shoestring is a tragedy. The girl, seeing the state of the case, would have been appalled but for that reliance on the sterner sex natural to women. She waited for him to get over the difficulty without in the least concerning herself about it. The gallant fellow looked at the broken string, thought rapidly, then plunged his hands into each of his dozen pockets. From one of them he drew a corn colored ribbon that had bound together packages of cigars; then, getting rid of the broken shoestring, he laced the shoe with the ribbon.

"There," he said, rising and standing with lifted hat; "that will serve till you reach home."
The girl gave him a smile and a "Thank you!" and went on her way.

Grafton Hatch watched her retreating figure till it had passed out of sight. He was not conscious of the impression she had made on him; it simply occurred to him that he would like to meet her again, and when it had occurred to him once it occurred to him again and again. Indeed he kept on thinking so till at last it became a mania with him.

Months passed before he was rewarded by another sight of the charmer. It was springtime, and he was riding in an open electric car. A car coming from the opposite direction sped past him, and he had such a vision as one may gain from a flash of lightning on a dark night. It was the girl whose shoe he had laced, and in a buttonhole of her corsage was the bow of corn colored ribbon he had used for a shoestring.

The fire smoldering in Grafton Hatch's bosom at seeing this evidence of the impression he had made burst into a flame. But the pleasure he took in the discovery was marred by the thought that living as he did in a great city the chances were that he might never meet the girl again, or, if he did, possibly under circumstances prohibitory to his having a word with her. The distressing complication well nigh threw him into a fever. He signaled the conductor to stop the car, with a view to following the one just passed, but on looking back saw that it was already far in the distance and realized the impossibility of catching it.

Hatch spent a great deal of time trying to conjure up a method of communicating with the girl who wore his colors, but could think of none except a personal advertisement, and from this he shrank. Nevertheless, after a long period of distress he tried it, but whether his ad. never met the girl's eyes or she did not care to reply, he did not hear from her.

During the following summer Hatch visited the seashore. There were a number of resorts scattered along the coast, and the place where Hatch was stopping was separated from the one adjoining it on the north by an inlet. It was not very broad nor very deep, but there was no bridge across it and unless a boat was handy there was no way to cross it except by swimming. One afternoon Hatch went with a party of friends to the inlet for crabs. The lines were baited and the crabs were hungry. One of the ladies of the party, a girl who doted on Hatch, got a crab within reach of her landing net—she was trying to land Hatch as well—but was unable to get the crab into it. She called on Hatch, who was also in the act of landing a crab, to help her. Hatch was about to relinquish his prize to hasten to her assistance when, suddenly during a glance at a party on the opposite bank of the inlet who were gathering up their nets and crab lines preparatory to departing, he saw a sight that changed the whole current of his intentions—the girl whose shoe he had laced. And still she wore his colors.

Hatch took in the situation as a general who perceives that without a desperate sortie his enemy will escape him. The girl struggling with the crab heard a splash and, looking on the disturbed waters, saw Hatch swimming in a straight line for the opposite bank. She watched him till she saw him clutch the bank, stand himself up and dripping, hat in hand, stand before a girl with a bow of corn colored ribbon in her buttonhole.

Then she gave up hope. The crab meanwhile had got away.
That was the last seen of Hatch by any of his party that season. He walked away with the girl with the bow of ribbon and did not return to his hotel till late at night. He was soaking wet, but the weather was hot, and he was soon quite dry; besides, what were limp and rumpled garments to a man who had found his love.
The incident had been witnessed by so many persons that it was a commitment on the part of the lover, and the girl's friends were not slow in connecting him with the bow of ribbon she had long worn and of which she had persistently refused to give any explanation. A provisional engagement was announced before the lovers separated, which after Hatch had presented his credentials was made permanent. During the following autumn both crabbing parties were invited to the wedding. ANNE ATWOOD.

FOR THE CHILDREN

How They Knew Dinah.

Lillian, Gertrude, Harold and Stuart had a little kitty named Dinah. She was very black and very cunning.
One day, just before supper, a strange black kitten walked into the house, and they all agreed that she must go away, as some other children might be waiting for her to come home, so they put her out of doors and drove her off. While they were eating supper a little scratching was heard, and the children, looking around, saw a black kitten on the window sill trying to get in.

"It's Dinah!"
"It's the strange kitten!"
"It is Dinah!"
"Well, children," said papa, "now let each one tell why he thinks it is or it is not Dinah."
"I think it is Dinah because it is black and just her size," said Lillian. Gertrude looked carefully and exclaimed:
"I don't think it is Dinah because her eyes are larger and wilder."
"Do you see the white spot on her throat?" asked Harold. "It is smaller than Dinah's."
"Now, Stuart," said papa, turning to the youngest, "is it Dinah or not?"
"It is not."
"Sure?"
"Yes."
"Why?"
"Dinah is under the table!"—Sunday School Times.

The Fifteen Matches.
Take fifteen matches, bunch them up so they cannot be easily counted, lay them on a table and tell some person that you will allow him to start the game by drawing from the pile one, two or three matches, but no more. Tell him that you have the same privilege, and that you intend that he shall draw the last match, or at least that you will leave the last for him to draw. If you watch your turns carefully you will succeed perfectly, unless, of course, your opponent is acquainted with the system, and very few persons are.

If he should first draw one, you draw one. If his second draw should be three, then you draw one again. Observe now that there are six drawn. In order to assure yourself of winning make certain that this is the case either at your first or second draw—get six off the board. Then there are nine remaining. The next time you draw let it make four with what he draws, leaving the five still to be drawn. Now, if he draws three you take one; if he draws two, you take two, etc. You will thus see that the last match will always be left to your opponent.

A Laughter Game.
The object of the following game from "Games and Songs of American Children" is to excite to laughter by some ridiculous action:

The players approach each other from opposite sides of the room and sustain a dialogue in solemn tones, while they must keep grave countenances, on penalty of paying a forfeit. For example:
"The king of Turkey is dead."
"What did he die of?"
"Do so," making some ridiculous gesture.

Many Massachusetts children play it thus:
"The royal Russian Princess Husty Fusty is defunct."
To which it is necessary to answer soberly, "I'm sorry to hear it; even the cats bewail her loss."

The Largest Book.
The largest book in the world is to be seen in the British museum. It is an immense volume five feet ten inches in height and three feet two inches in width. Eight different skins were used for its cover, and four strong men are required to lift it whenever it is moved. It is closed with three gilt clasps, and the diamond shaped spaces on its covers are filled with alternate presentations of the rose, thistle and harp. This ponderous book was presented to the nation by George IV. in 1832, but for the last half century it has been little noticed, and it has probably remained unopened for many a long year.

Game of Definitions.
If you have never played the game of definitions, try it. Each player is supplied with a pencil and a strip of paper. One of the party selects a word, which the others must define in not more than fifteen words. The papers, which bear the player's name at the top, are folded and thrown in a hat. Player No. 1 then draws them forth, reading each aloud in turn. A dictionary must be provided, and the player whose definition most closely resembles the one in the book wins the game and selects the next word to be used.

A Misspelled Tale.
A little buoy said, "Mother, dear, May I go out to play?"
The son is bright, the heir is clear.
Owe, mother, don't say heigh!"
"Go fourth, my son," the mother said.
The ant said, "Take your slay—
Your gneiss knew sled, awl painted red,
But do not lose your weigh!"
"Ah, know," he cried, and sought the street.
With heart saw full of glee,
The water changed, and snow and sleet
And reign fell steadily.
Threw snowdrifts grate, threw watery pool.
He sue with mite and mane.
Said he, "Though I'd walk by rule,
Eye am not rite, 'tis plane.
"Eye'd like to meet sun kindly sole,
For hear gnu dangers weigh.
And yonder stairs a treacherous whole—
Two sloe has been my gate.
"A piece of bread, a gneiss hot stake,
Eye'd chews if Eye were home;
This crevel fate my hart wood brake—
Eye love not this to rom.
"Eye, week and pall, have mist my rode—
But heart a carle came passed.
He and his sled were safely road
Back to his home at last.

GAME SCHEDULED FOR AUGUST 10.

F. L. SLAGLE,
Manager of the Slagle Victors.

G. H. LINES,
Manager of the Etina Team.

What should prove to be one of the fastest games that has been seen in Newark this season is advertised for Wednesday, August 10, at Idlewild Park grounds, when the Etina team will play the Slagle Victors, one of the best amateur teams in Columbus. This game will be for a substantial side bet and as there is an intense rivalry between the two teams a great game should result. Each has won a great majority of the games played. Admission has been fixed men 25c, ladies 15c, children 10c.

GREATEST

FINISH EVER SEEN TO A BALL GAME IN NEWARK.

Home Team in Last Half of Ninth
Made Six Runs and Tied the Score.

A baseball game is never over until the last man is out, and the players leave the field. There is never any telling what is going to happen, and never was this more forcibly demonstrated than in Wednesday's game between Idlewild and the Circleville Reds.

The two teams played seven innings in which time the visitors had made seven runs, while the locals had been unable to connect with King's delivery with the result that they had been blanked. In the last part of the eighth the home team made one run, after which the ninth began. The visitors were easily disposed of and Idlewild went in for their last time. Doyle went to the plate, and a ripple of applause went up when he made a two-base hit. The crowd had already made for the exits and many left the park, as the game appeared hopelessly lost. Doyle's hit was followed by singles and doubles and four runs came in. At this juncture there were two men on bases with Big Bill Farrell at the bat. Those two runs were needed to tie the score and the crowd appealed to Bill. The appeal was not in vain. Eddie Justice was screaming "Never too late, Bill." Ivor Wagner was coaching his first baseman, and every player and spectator was tense with excitement. Finally the big left-hander found one to his liking and "soused" it. Before it could be fielded in the batter was on third and the score was tied.

Never has such a scene been witnessed at Idlewild park as that which followed Farrell's hit. Some men became screaming maniacs, serate, dignified physicians and lawyers were jumping up and down yelling themselves hoarse like young school boys, while several threw silver coins at Farrell as he stood on third. It was absolutely the greatest finish ever seen to a baseball game in Newark.

From the fifth on Lefty Snyder was invincible and in many innings the visitors were retired in one, two, three order. Neither side scored after the ninth, and when the thirteenth inning was finished umpire Dickinson called the game on account of darkness.

Snodgrass early in the game had a finger split and was forced to retire in favor of Doyle, Davis going to left field. The score:

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF.
Which Is Better—Try an Experiment or Profit by a Newark Citizen's Experience.

Something new is an experiment. Must be proved to be represented. The statement of a manufacturer is not convincing proof of merit. But the endorsement of friends is. Now suppose you had a bad back. A lame, weak or aching one. Would you experiment on it? You will read of many so-called cures.

Endorsed by strangers from far-away places. It's different when the endorsement comes from home.

Easy to prove local testimony. Home endorsement is the proof that backs every box of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Albert Wood, of 113 Mill Street, yard switchman on the B. & O. R. R., says: "I had pain in my back just across the kidneys. It was rather new experience for me, but I did not have it long because I went to Crayton Bros' drug store and got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. They took all the pain out of my back. I conscientiously advise others to take them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Suicide Prevented.
The startling announcement that a preventive of suicide had been discovered will interest many. A run-down system or dependency invariably precedes suicide, and something has been found that will prevent that condition which makes suicide likely. At the first thought of self-destruction take Electric Bitters. It being a great tonic and nerve will strengthen the nerves and build up the system. It's also a great stomach, liver and kidney regulator. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by Frank D. Hall, druggist.

TROUBLE

AMONG THE IDLEWILDE PLAYERS
WAS IMAGINABLE.

Manager Driscoll Explains the Situation and Corrects False Impressions Made by a Paper.

The Wednesday edition of another evening paper carried a story played up under a two column head concerning trouble in the ranks of the Idlewild baseball team over a cut in the players' salaries and stated that many of the players thought of quitting. Only one was mentioned, pitcher Neil Mason, who, it was said, had requested Manager Driscoll for his release.

The article referred to does Manager Driscoll and the team, great injustice. A false impression as to the situation was given by the article referred to. Manager Driscoll told the players the first of August that several would receive a cut in salary. Not all received this notice but Mason was one who did. Manager Driscoll told those who were cut that if any of them wanted to quit, they would receive the old salary which they had gotten until the 8th, upon giving notice that they wanted to quit. This would give both the player and manager time to make any necessary arrangements. Now no one could reasonably object to such a proposition, but when Driscoll told Mason he expected to pitch Wednesday's game the twirler absolutely refused, saying it was not his turn. Now Mason has pitched three games and two innings in two weeks so it could not be stated that Driscoll's request was unreasonable. Upon the pitcher's refusal Driscoll told him to get his uniform and he would give him 15 cents. The article stated that Mason was released "at his own request." The above was how it was done.

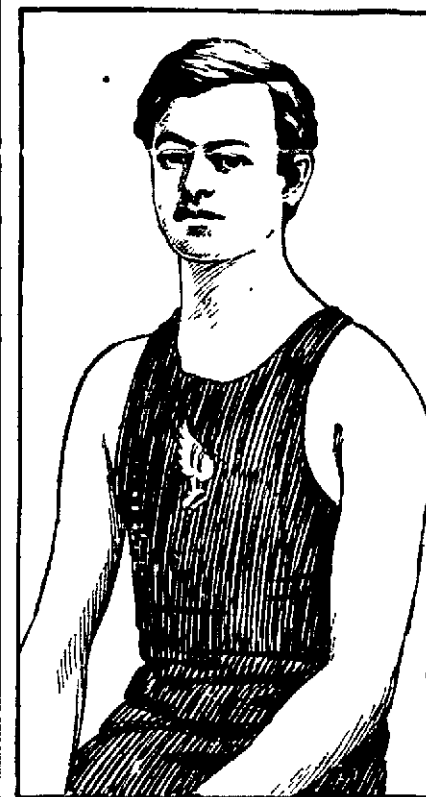

Manager Driscoll was very angry when seen Thursday morning. He stated that the writer of the article Wednesday night had always been given every courtesy at the park and every bit of news that had ever been asked for. He did not think that it was a matter for the public gossip how much he paid the players under his management, nor any dealings he had with them as to salaries. The public played to see the players play baseball and this the team has certainly been doing. Of what interest can the people who go to see the games have in what the players receive as long as they play ball? What do they care if Bill Farrell is paid $1,000 a month, while Eddie Justice gets only $900?

Neil Mason is a good pitcher and a clever gentleman but no successful manager can stand for insubordination or sulks on the part of any player. Any one who accuses the week day games knows that Driscoll has been up against it. What is made on Sunday is eaten up during the week. Retrenchment was necessary or the club could not longer exist. Piqua, Sidney, Urbana, Parkersburg, and many other teams have gone under but Driscoll intends to play the season out if possible. He has given Newark a winning team which has furnished the best of baseball, and deserves the patronage and support of every one who enjoys the game.

Fits a Fighter, Not an Actor.

Nobody seems able to convince Bob Fitzsimmons that his forte is fighting, not acting. How many thousands of dollars have been squandered by Ruby Robert in efforts to emulate Jim Corbett's example and become a successful actor dependent on the outcome of his efforts upon the outlook of his efforts with the pugilist?

"An author writing a play for a man whose reputation has been made off the stage will do well not to give that man too much to do at the outset. The main thing is to bring him on the stage right. Once you succeed in doing that his personality and popularity will do the rest."

"I used to write the plays in which Bill Cody starred before he took to circus, and I always followed that rule. Get Bill on the stage, and the rest was only counting up the house."

"I invariably stuck to the opening speech for Bill. It was this, 'I am Buffalo Bill.'"

"This, of course, was preceded by the question, usually asked by the villain, 'Who the devil are you?'"

"Can you realize the effect of Bill's answer? With the gallery everything was settled from that point on. They didn't have to be told anything more about Buffalo Bill. They knew all about him and were satisfied that at the right moment Bill would take fancy shots at any villain who happened to annoy him."

Photographs and Race Horses.

Let there be an end to the old superstition among the rank and file of the trainers of thoroughbreds that allowing a horse to be photographed "hoodoo" him so that he will not be able to win. Many trainers are so firmly impressed with this whim as to the evil effects of photographing that they become absolutely uncivil when a polite request is made for the privilege of securing a chance to photograph any of their horses. Of course no sensible person would pay any attention to such an old woman's idea, but there are hundreds of trainers who profess to believe in the idea that a photographer brings ill luck.

Shank Training Likely Youngsters.

Pat Shank, who has a private track at Litchfield, O., where he trains, has some very promising youngsters in training. He recently stepped Sidney Wilkes, a green trotter by Guy Wilkes, 2:15 1/4, dam Santa Rita, 2:24 1/4, a half in 1:18. He has a very promising filly by Earl Wilton, 2:18 1/4, dam Henrietta G., 2:19 1/4, by Elyria. Henrietta G. is the dam of the fast three-year-old Harry McKerron, in Fred Keyes' stable, by John A. McKerron, 2:04 1/2. F. M. Camp of Homersville, O., owns this filly. Earl Wilton is owned by H. K. Devereux, and is in the stud at Litchfield in Mr. Shank's charge.

Tuna, 2:16 1-4.

The California mare Tuna (3), 2:16 1/4, by James Madison, is lying up at Denver, from which place she will be shipped to Detroit and raced through the grand circuit. She is said to have stepped a workout in 2:08 1/2 before leaving Pleasanton, Cal.

A Trotting Doe.

John North, a farmer residing near Tyson, Vt., is said to have a trotting doe which he captured last summer and which he is training for a record. Sally, as the young deer is called, has been broken to harness and is developing amazing speed.

Sam Leever's Arm.

There is a feeling among the members of the Pittsburgh team that Sam Leever, the former great pitcher of the team, will hardly last longer than this season, if his arm is equal to the strain of going that distance.

Dr. Bertario Adacki of Japan states that the western people have a natural odor that, while it is not perceived by themselves, is very perceptible to the yellow race. The Japanese and Chinese who take up their residence among Europeans can at first hardly tolerate the odor.

In 1776 the grip claimed so many victims in Paris alone that a physician offered a prize of $2,000 to the person who could show that he had been exempt from it. A single person presented himself, a song writer named Nougaret who composed a comic opera in one act entitled "La Grippe."

One room near the Royal Exchange in London lets for between $10,000 and $15,000 a year.

Mr. Geo. W. Polton, 72 years of age, Akron, Mich., writes: "For many years I have been greatly troubled with Chronic Constipation, and though there was no help for me. I have used nearly three bottles of Drake's Palmetto Wine with result that I have no trouble from Constipation, and believe a cure is assured. Drake's Palmetto Wine has done for me what all other remedies failed to do."

A Timely Thought

Fix your mind for a moment on the fact that stomach trouble and headache are symptoms of liver trouble and you will see why the so-called dyspepsia cures fail to do their work. You must remove the cause by regulating the liver before you can expect relief.

Dr. Kohn's Euro Syrup

is a vegetable remedy, gentle in its action and lasting in results. It induces digestion and regulates the liver, thereby putting the system in perfect order.

STRUCK OIL

Bladenburg, Aug. 4.—The Logan Gas company, which has been drilling a well on the farm of George McKee, one mile southeast, struck oil Wednesday afternoon. The boiler was moved to a safe distance from the derrick where it was reset today. The knowing ones say that the well is a gusher. Great excitement prevails and people from all the surrounding country are visiting the well, which is guarded. Several Newark parties, including E. H. Everett, are interested.

Cats in a Bombardment.

A lady who was in Port Arthur during the bombardments by Admiral Togo's fleet thus describes the curious effect produced on cats by the cannonade: "I was at my window during each bombardment by the Japs, but only through the day, because at night I did not dare stir out of bed. In front of me there was a little room in which five or six cats of the neighborhood collected. Each time there was a bombardment the cats duly arrived, and, having observed them, I on the second occasion proceeded to watch them. With my family we passed the hours looking at them. At each gunshot the cats arched their backs and stiffened their legs and seemed both terrified and furious. Then when a hissing shell arrived it gave the signal for a frightful battle. They jumped at each other, raging like tigers, and seemed to hold each other responsible for what was taking place. The effect was so comical that we could not help laughing, although the occasion did not inspire gaiety. After having fought, the cats retired for awhile, as though bewildered, but as soon as the bombardment began again they went through the same business. Each time it was always the same."

Pointing to a row of dusty shoes on a shelf, the customer asked the cobbler: "How in the world did you collect all those shoes? Do you mean to say that people leave their shoes for repairs and then never come after them?" "Just that," replied the cobbler. "Sometimes after they have left their shoes they come to the conclusion that they'd rather spend a little more money and get a new pair outright. Then again if they have a lot of shoes they don't miss the pair they've left in here, and they forget all about them. It's generally men who do that sort of thing, though. A woman seems to be more provident."

"No; the work on them is not a dead loss to me, for after keeping them a year I generally offer them for sale at a price in advance of the value of my work on them. Sometimes I reap quite a little money from my sale of deserted shoes, and many a poor person gets a slick shoe for about a third less than its worth."—New York Press.

Newark Council A. P. U. will hold an important meeting tonight.

A MYSTERIOUS VISION.

Stranger Dream In Which Major Andre's Fate Was Foretold.

The following instance may serve to strikingly justify Colquhoun's theory that there is an original spiritual energy expressed in dreams which has nothing to do with the state of the body and is beyond the power of the soul when it has been reabsorbed by the material organization on awaking. Prior to his embarkation for America at the outbreak of the Revolutionary war Major Andre went to visit a friend, Miss Rebecca Steward, who lived in Derbyshire. During his stay it was arranged that they should ride over to view the wonders of the famous peak. It was also Miss Steward's desire to introduce the major to some friends in the neighborhood, including a Mr. Newton and the curate of the parish, Mr. Cunningham. She had given both these gentlemen notice of her intention, and while awaiting her arrival Mr. Cunningham took occasion to tell Mr. Newton the circumstances of a dream he had had the night before which affected him so that he could not shake off the recollection of it.

He said that he was standing in the midst of a forest that was entirely strange to him. After gazing listlessly around him for a few moments he perceived a horseman approaching at great speed. As the latter came opposite the spot where the dreamer stood three men who seemed to have been lying in ambush sprang from their place of concealment and, seizing the horse, ordered the rider to dismount. They then carefully searched his person and led him away. The face, figure and bearing of the horseman made so deep an impression upon Mr. Cunningham's mind that he awoke; but, falling asleep again presently, he dreamed that he was one of a throng of spectators near a great city; that he saw the same person he had seen seized in the wood brought out between files of soldiers, who marched him to a gallows and there hanged him. When Major Andre and Miss Steward arrived, Mr. Cunningham was horror struck to discover in the person of Miss Steward's friend the very man whose seizure and execution he had witnessed in his dream.

Here was an accurate anticipation of events that actually happened within twelve months from the date of the dream. The capture of Andre, the search of his person for documents that convicted him for acting the part of a spy and his public execution constitute one of the most dramatic episodes of the contest with the mother country. How is it imaginable that so definite a vision of coming events could arise from the influence of any physical condition on the mind of the sleeper? What possible state of the body could confer upon the soul the power to describe future occurrences with such exact fidelity to details?

SPOILED A DUEL.

The Scheme Senator Lamar Worked to Prevent an Encounter.

During the course of a heated debate in the house of representatives sharp words were exchanged between a congressman from New York and one from Mississippi. A challenge was delivered and accepted, and as both were courageous and determined a bloody meeting seemed imminent. Friends interposed, but in vain. Both men were resolute, and neither would yield to the suggestion of an amicable arrangement. As a last resort Senator Lamar was called in to save the situation. He realized that no ordinary methods would serve his purpose, and so resorted to strategy. The principals in the proposed duel are still living, so I will call the New Yorker Jones and the Mississippian Smith.

Senator Lamar called on the New Yorker, and after the usual civilities had been exchanged he said:

"Jones, I've come here to do you a friendly turn. I know that you and Smith are determined to fight and that nothing will stop you. I have not come as a mediator, but simply to mitigate, if possible, the horrors of a fatal end, so far as you are concerned. As to Smith, I have no fears. He is a dead shot and can take care of himself, but he is not an unfeeling man, and is inclined to respect any partiality you may have in favor of any particular part of your anatomy. Some men entertain a mortal dread of being disfigured after death, and if the choice were left them would prefer not to be wounded in the eye or mouth or cheek bone. Now, if there is any particular spot that you would like to have Smith's bullet enter he has commissioned me to say that your wishes will be respected."

This extraordinary proposition staggered the New Yorker. Even his undoubted courage did not stand so severe a test, and he yielded visibly. After he recovered his composure he replied that he would confer with his second, and Mr. Lamar, after an impressive farewell, took his leave.

The tip was given to friends of the principals and new negotiations entered upon. The duel did not come off. Lamar's device had succeeded.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Certified Checks.

When one wishes to use a personal check to pay a note due at some other bank, it may be necessary to get the check certified. This is done by an officer of the bank, who stamps across the face of the check the words "Certified" or "Good when properly indorsed" under his name. Banks will usually certify any check drawn upon them if the depositor has the amount in the bank, as the check is immediately charged against the account when certified. A check certified and not used should be deposited, lest one's account be overdrawn.—New Idea Magazine.

Two novelties in the way of passenger train equipment have been introduced by the Pere Marquette railroad between Chicago and Grand Rapids. In each end of every coach and also in the baggage cars is placed a large electric fan run by power furnished from the axles. Power for electric lamps throughout each train is also obtained from the same source.

Low Rate Excursion to Atlantic City, N. J., and Other Seaside Resorts.—In order to give its patrons an opportunity to visit the seashore at a nominal cost, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company will sell low-rate excursion tickets to Atlantic City, Ocean City, Cape May and Sea Isle City, N. J., and Ocean City, Md., on Thursday, August 18, 1904.

Atlantic City, N. J., the most popular of the hundred or more resorts along the Atlantic Coast, is pronounced the finest watering place in the world. This great American Seashore Resort has kept pace with the times and prospered. The hotels have grown in number and size. Prosperity and popularity are with it.

The surf bathing which has made Atlantic City famous is one of the wonders of the world. The sight during bathing hours defies description; men, women and children in bathing costumes of varied hues form a picture to be seen only at Atlantic City.

Aside from the seaside features, Atlantic City has amusements of every kind. Great iron piers extend hundreds of feet into the ocean. Each pier has its summer theater and band stands, and for a nominal price one can enjoy the comfortable chairs of the pier and listen to the music of the bands throughout the entire day, if he so wills it.

The proximity of Atlantic City to all the big central and western cities, by reason of the excellent through train service of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, makes it the resort of the masses.

Tickets will be available on all regular trains, and will be good for return twelve days, including date of sale, thus giving ample time for an enjoyable outing. Stop-over within limit of ticket will be allowed at Philadelphia, Pa., and Washington, D. C., on return trip.

Very Low Rates to Columbus, Ohio—August 29 to September 2, inclusive, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company will sell excursion tickets from all local stations in Ohio to Columbus, Ohio, at rate of one fare plus 25 cents for the round trip, account Ohio State Fair, good for return until September 3, 1904.

HURBAUGH TRANSFER AND STORAGE COMPANY.

Why store your household and other goods in an old frame building liable to catch fire, and infected with rats and other vermin, when you can store with us, in our new clean brick storage room, near canal, or west side of Fourth street, fitted up specially with a view of being free from vermin of all kinds, fire-proof, with elevators for hoisting and lowering goods, and good, competent and careful men who are experienced in such business to handle such goods, and especially constructed vans to transfer such goods. We make a specialty in transferring, handling and caring for all kinds of valuable goods and property, and owners of such goods can rest assured that in our transfer and storage the goods will not be scared or injured, or when taken out be infested with bed bugs or other vermin, or eaten by rats and mice.

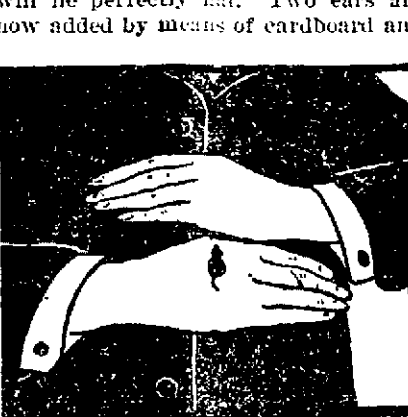

THE PET MOUSE.

It is Made of Cork, but Really Acts as Though It Were Alive.

You can have a pet mouse if you want to, and even though he is only made of cork with the proper manipulation he will act as though he were really alive.

First carve a cork into the form of a mouse as well as you can. Then cut away the under part of the body so it will lie perfectly flat. Two ears are now added by means of cardboard and a little glue, and the tail is formed by attaching a piece of cord in the place where it should be.

Blacken Mr. Mouse in the flame of a candle and then insert a tiny hook in the front part of his body, concealing it from view underneath his neck.

Next tie a piece of black thread about ten inches long to a convenient buttonhole. The end of the thread terminates in a loop.

Fix the loop in the hook, tightening the thread and put the mouse upon the back of your left hand.

If you move the hand back from the body the mouse, which does not move at all, seems to glide across the back of the hand, and at the moment it is about to fall, when it reaches the thumb, the right hand passed below arrives to catch it near the little finger, and from there by the same previous movement it appears to travel to the thumb.

THE DISUNITED STATES.

A Guessing Contest That Brings About Quicker Blunders.

A guessing contest which seems easy to most girls and boys when they hear of it, but proves more difficult than they supposed, is the Disunited States.

Make an outline, nothing more, of each state in the Union. These must be drawn on separate cards or pieces of paper and be exactly like the outlines on the map. Have each card numbered and its number placed opposite the name of the state on a separate piece of paper, which is not shown until the contest is over.

You will be surprised at the mistakes made, for even those who have studied geography for years find it difficult to decide which state the outline stands for when it is all alone.

Each player writes his name on a slip of paper bearing the number he ventures to guess. The one who has the most correct answers should receive a prize. This is a simple game, but it affords amusement to schoolboys and girls and to older people who, having left school before many of the newer states were added to the Union, find it no easy task to guess the state by a mere outline.

Sometimes a river or a mountain sketched through the state in its proper place will give the guessers a better chance, but even then many funny blunders are sure to be made.

Conundrums.

What kind of a face does an auctioneer like best? One that is forbidden.

Can you tell of what nationality Napoleon was? Of course I can (Corsican).

When is a nose not a nose? When it is a little reddish (radish) or a turn up (turnip).

What sweetmeat is like a person proposed for some office? The candy-date (candidate).

Why is it almost impossible to kill a soldier? Because he can live in quarters very comfortably.

Why is a room full of married ladies like an empty one? Because there isn't a single one in it.

How to Make a Flute.

Wrap a piece of paper around a pencil. Paste the edge down, making a tube. To one end fasten a triangular piece of paper somewhat larger than the opening. To play draw in your breath through the open end of the tube.

A Watery Wish.

I wish that all the water on the roly poly earth would run away from houses and get drowned in the sea!

I wish there was of sponges and of soap an awful dearth!

I wish I'd never had a bath these nine years since my birth!

Oh, my, but what a happy boy "yours truly" would be!

It wouldn't take a fifty cent to sting on all my elbows!

And to hurry down to breakfast when the bell is a to ring!

I wouldn't have to go to bed when sister Polly goes!

(She likes to wash—she really does—but then she's a to pose!

As a model little girl, is "as sweet as anything"!

There's only just one little thing that I would like to say

Before you write it down on paper black and white—

I guess I'd rather have a bath most fourteen times a day

Than have my dear mother, in her sweet and gentle way,

Refuse to give a dirty boy a loving kiss good night.

Evaporation of the Dead sea is so great that it sensibly exceeds the influx of river water, including that of the Jordan. The sea, therefore, is slowly drying up.

The question has been raised whether or not the drinking of water from glass bottles may be the cause of appendicitis. It is asserted there is a slight dissolution of the glass.

For years past the Swiss peasants have had almost a monopoly in the making of certain toys. Now in the vast woods of northern New England the factories will turn out in one day more toys than fifty households in the Tyrol could produce in a week.

The western genius who discovered that there is a market for canned jack rabbit has probably sounded the death knell of the long legged creature of the prairie. The first canning factory has been established at Leda, Ore., and thousands of jack rabbits are slaughtered in that vicinity every month.

The chuchuncho bandits of Manchuria are not a distinct race of semisavage people, as is commonly thought. They are only common, everyday Chinese or Manchoues. So numerous are these banditti and in some districts so perfect is their organization that they have constructed fortified encampments.

The number of fellow creatures, young and old, who feel impelled to gnaw something is much larger than is generally supposed. The chronic nibbler is well known, but there are others who either through depraved taste or psychic disease gnaw wood, fur, cloth, etc., to the great detriment of their health.

English rabbit skins are now shipped to the United States direct instead of being sent to the continent of Europe, where formerly the long hairs used in the manufacture of felt hats were pulled by cheap hand labor before going to the United States, the American unloading or pulling machine having proved to be a success.

That a person who has been often stung by bees becomes in time immune to the poison of the sting is asserted by Dr. H. F. Parker. He reports that when he first began to keep bees he was frequently stung and that each sting was attended with acute pain, but that as time went on the pain and swelling became less.

To aid the ordinary gas and electric lamps, which are insufficient in foggy weather, there are now kept in reserve in Westminster, London, special lamps that are distributed in frequented streets when they are needed. They consist essentially of a large round reservoir that may contain about twenty-five gallons of gasoline, in which the air is compressed.

The Italian postal authorities have examined a scheme submitted by an engineer for the establishment of an electric postal service. It is proposed to transmit letters in aluminum boxes, traveling along overhead wires at the rate of 400 kilometers an hour. A letter could thus be sent from Rome to Naples in twenty-five minutes and from Rome to Paris in five hours.

Reports from the Discovery, which has been exploring the antarctic regions, give interesting particulars as to the appetites which come to the half frozen men on long sledge expeditions. Hunger proved a dreadful nightmare, some of the men having horrible visions of tempting dishes. It is questionable if anything could compare in the way of hardships suffered with this form of modified starvation on such trips.

Georgia Nixon, proprietress of a Railroad street resort, attempted to commit suicide Wednesday afternoon about 5:45 o'clock. She had been drinking heavily all day and became despondent and swallowed about an ounce and a half of carboic acid. Drs. C. F. Legge and H. H. Roth were summoned and administered proper antidotes, and the woman is now out of danger, though her life for several hours Wednesday evening was despaired of.

The Nixon woman is well known in police circles and only recently was fined by the Mayor for keeping an improper place. It is alleged that she has been worrying over financial matters and became so despondent that she concluded to try suicide. The prompt work of the doctors however, has probably saved her life.

GEORGIA'S ZANESVILLE RECORD.

Zanesville, O., Aug. 4.—Georgia Nixon, who tried to shuffle off this mortal coil at Newark by the carboic acid route last night, is well known in police circles here. She left this city to make her abode and cast her troubles in Newark three years ago.

The Nixon woman is a native of Zanesville. For six years she was the proprietress of a house of ill fame located at Center and Third streets. Complaints were numerous concerning her and inmates of her resort. By the police it stated that not less than a dozen times the victim was arrested in this city and arraigned in local police court.

Looking over the police court record Lieutenant of Police Peteh recalled how on the night of November 23, 1901 he, together with associates of the police department, pulled the Nixon resort. She was fined $3 and costs on the charge of running a house of ill repute.

The raid upon the Nixon house was found necessary by the police. By a prominent merchant of the city complaint was registered concerning Georgia Nixon allowing his minor son

A FORTUNE

AWAITS THIS WOMAN WHOSE LOCATION IS UNKNOWN.

She Was a Poorhouse Babe and Was Substituted for Another's Child That Died.

Wooster, O., Aug. 4.—A fortune of about $12,000 awaits a woman who was born in the poorhouse of Wayne county, about 29 years ago if she can be located.

In September, 1875 Mrs. David Lilly wife of a resident of this city was committed to the county infirmary. A few days later she became the mother of a daughter. Soon after the mother died. About the time that the wife of the poorhouse came into the world, the wife of a wealthy farmer became the mother of a daughter. This babe died within a few hours. The father of this child who had been married many years without children blessing his home, was anxious for an heir. He was a particular friend of Charles C. Gasche, Sr. a member of the board of infirmary directors, and through Mr. Gasche got possession of Mrs. Lilly's babe. Taking it to his home he gave it to his wife as their own.

Whether the husband ever told his wife of the merciful deception is not known, but the girl grew to womanhood. Mr. Gasche, on different occasions saw her as a young woman and told the story of her parentage, but no one can be found to whom he told the name of the people who adopted the babe.

It has just come to light that the wife of the poorhouse, through the death of the brother of the mother, is one of the heirs to a large fortune. But to locate her is the question. Mr. Gasche is dead; also his wife to whom he told the name of the people who had taken the wife as their own. It is hoped that some one can be found that knows the name of the family. If the foster father is still living he can supply the information, but whether he will be willing to do so is the question.

INTRUDER

Badly Frightened Mrs. Foulz In a Cottage at Idlewild Park, Wednesday Night.

Mrs. Foulz, wife of the drummer in the orchestra at Idlewild casino, had an exciting experience Wednesday evening about 8:30. Mr. and Mrs. Foulz occupy a cottage at the park, and she was alone at the time, when a big, burly man knocked at the door and forced his way into the room. The frightened woman screamed and ran to the casino, where she nearly collapsed in the ladies' parlor, but soon recovered.

Although she gave a good description of the intruder, officers could find no trace of him.

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abscess on my right lung," writes J. F. Hughes of DuPont, Ga., "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all coughs, colds and throat and lung troubles. Guaranteed by Frank D. Hall, druggist. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

OPERATIC VAUDEVILLE.

OBITUARY.

MISS ALICE WHITTAKER.

Miss Alice Whittaker, aged 46 years, died at the home of her brother-in-law, Henry Hesrick, at 26 Maholm street, Wednesday noon after an invalidism dating from babyhood. The remains will be shipped to Zanesville on the interurban at 10 o'clock Friday morning, where the funeral services will be held.

MR. RYAN'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of A. M. Ryan, who was drowned Tuesday night, will take place from the house, 121 East Locust street, Friday morning at 9 o'clock, the services being conducted by the Rev. T. L. Kiernan and Rev. J. C. Schindel. The interment will be made in the Shannon grave yard, south of Clay Lick.

Alexander Sutherland, the bugler who led the famous "light brigade" at Palaklava, is living in the city of Denver, Cold. He is 94 years of age but has expressed a desire to attend the St. Louis fair in response to an invitation received from the school children of that city.

Going ahead depends on more than head power.

AT THE PARK

A FIRST RATE ENTERTAINMENT IS TO BE SEEN.

Almost Unanimous Remark is Made 'The Best That Has Been Here This Season.'

Almost unanimously the remark is heard, concerning the bill at Idlewild Park this week, "the best that has been here this season," and taken as a whole this is true. It is varied and includes the best liked features of vaudeville. Each act has a presentation that is given to it by people who have a great reputation in the theatrical world so that the entertainment from the beginning is thoroughly enjoyable.

Good audiences have been the rule this week and Wednesday night the Casino was nearly full, including a big representation from Newark's society circles in boxes and orchestra. Every act was given liberal applause and several were heartily encored.

The bill opens with Preston, who with lightning crayon character sketches entertains for about fifteen minutes.

Miss Brooke Eltrym, one of the most famous and high priced singers of ballads in the business, sings three songs, each one being given liberal and spontaneous applause. She has a voice of great power and uses it with discrimination and absolute pitch precision. She is good.

Innes and Ryan do a sketch, interspersed with monologue and several topical and rag-time songs. Their act is always well received.

The Columbians in fancy dress dances and a sketch entitled "A Wax Doll" are as clever as any that ever appeared here. The toe dancing of the youngest of the six, a little mite of 5 years, is simply great.

If you miss this week's bill you will indeed fail to see one of the best.

GAS AND OIL

THREE MILLION WELL STRUCK NEAR BRANDON.

Oil Flow East of Bladensburg—Zanesville Men Strike It Rich in Morgan County.

The Ohio Fuel Supply Co. brought in a three-million well on the Amos Rowe farm, a half-mile south of Brandon, Tuesday. The Logan has set stakes for a well on Mrs. Brown's farm, east of Brandon.

Oil was struck Monday evening in a well on the George McKee farm, east of Bladensburg. The gas company has them well guarded, and will give out no information, but it is the general opinion that a paying flow has been secured.

J. B. Wilson, O. F. McKinney and C. W. Joslin of Zanesville, are the owners of an oil lease in Morgan county upon which a gusher was drilled this week. The well yielded 500 barrels in 24 hours, and has not been shot or pumped. It is estimated that it will prove a two-hundred-barrel well. Oil was struck at a depth of only 600 feet, and excitement in the Morgan county field has been renewed.

WEDDINGS.

THOMPSON-BUSH.

Richard Thompson, the well known stage carpenter at the Idlewild casino was married Wednesday evening by Rev. J. C. Schindel to Miss Bertha Bush, a highly respectable young woman of this city, where they will make their home.

The park employees Thursday morning presented "Dick" and his bride with a handsome chair, with their best wishes for a long life of prosperity for their fellow employee and his estimable wife.

WILLIAMS-BOGARDUS.

At 8 o'clock Wednesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bogardus at 83 Western avenue, their daughter, Miss Minnie was married to Mr. Claude C. Williams, of Everett, Pa., Rev. H. Newton Miller performing the ceremony in the presence of about 25 invited guests. The wedding march was played by Miss Martha Schleifer, and the couple were attended by Miss Kate Busch and Mr. B. O. Horton.

The house was beautifully and artistically decorated, and abundant wedding supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams in a few days will go to Terre Haute, Ind., to make their home.

A true saint never needs to seek persecution.

NOT HER FATHER.

Mrs. Clara E. Smith, 358 Barth street, Columbus, was here Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of identifying, if possible, the man who killed himself along the creek bank, a few weeks ago. Mrs. Smith said the description answered that of her father, and if it developed that this man's leg had been broken, she would be positive the man was her father. The body was exhumed and it was learned that the man's legs had never been fractured. Mrs. Smith returned home in the evening.

AGED MAN INSANE.

Mt. Vernon, Aug. 4.—Deacon D. L. Travis, 84 years old, was taken to the insane asylum yesterday afternoon. His trouble started with insomnia.

PICNIC WILL BE ENJOYED BY THE BUILDERS.

Newark, Columbus and Zanesville Men To Join In The Event There On August Ninth.

Zanesville, Aug. 4.—The whole number of directors of the Builders' Exchange met at their quarters Wednesday evening. In considering the invitation extended by the Columbus Exchange, Secretary Charles Baker was instructed to mail each member of the local exchange full information of the all-day picnic and outing to which the local members have been invited at Buckeye lake on Tuesday, Aug. 9.

From 60 to 70 local members are expected to attend. The invitation is extended to exchange members and their friends. From 300 to 400 will attend from Columbus. Newark will also be well represented. Special rates and concessions have been secured by the Zanesville exchange.

An elaborate program has been arranged for the occasion. A number of out-door contests in popular sports and amusements have been arranged. To these the Zanesville members are invited to participate. Appropriate prizes will be offered the winners of these events.

No annual outing has been planned by the Zanesville exchange, and efforts will be made to secure a large representative delegation to this event. Local members and their friends will leave the city at 8 o'clock next Tuesday morning.

THOS. J. GAINOR

Newark Man Who Manages Coshocton Glass Plant is After More Dwelling Houses.

The Coshocton Glass company is making a vigorous campaign to secure dwelling houses. It is a rush order and Manager Thos. J. Gainor is doing his utmost to get out on time.

The work of erecting the new plants with the greater equipment is proceeding rapidly and the company is sanguine that the fires will start September 1. That means that there will be an influx of new families into Coshocton in about about two weeks that will be unprecedented.

"We already have sixteen houses under rent," said Manager Gainor, "and we are after as many more as we can get. We will take a year's lease on any good house in town. To begin as soon as we can get the house. Our men are a high class of workmen and make desirable tenants and citizens."
